Gas Co. Showroom Robbed

(By Margaret Bradbury)
The Hong Kong Gas Company lost $6,000 in a daring daylight robbery shortly after 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon, when two men held up a shoof carrying the money from the Gloucester Arcade to offices on the first floor of the building.

The shoof, Wong Chung, was bound, gagged and flung into a lavatory half-way between the ground and first floors. Here he was found at 5.20 p.m. by Mr. H. V. Ardy, Assistant Distribution Superintendent of the company.

Wong Chung said that he had not seen either of the two men before. One of them, he said, carried a revolver. One wore khaki clothes, the other was in a Chinese black suit.

Considerable difficulty was experienced by the Gas Company in getting through to the Police. Mr. Ardy said he started trying to get through on the telephone at about 5.20 o'clock but could get no response from Central Police Station. He kept on telephoning until 5.45 p.m. and then, still getting no reply, tried the Upper Levels station, Central Division.

Line Busy!

Here, although he pointed out that he was trying to report that an armed robbery had just occurred, Mr. Ardy was told by the operator that he would have to wait until the line was not busy.

Eventually, according to Gas Company officials, a police party did arrive at 6.05 p.m. in the shape of officers from both Central Police Station and the Upper Levels Station.

A colleague of mine was informed later by Central Police Station that the robbery took place between 5 and 5.15 p.m. They received a telephone message reporting it at 5.35 p.m. and a party was sent immediately.

When I crossed the harbour about an hour after Mr. Ardy had discovered the bound shoof—I was actually on the scene long before the Police arrived—the Police had flung their usual cordons along the water-front, stifling the rush-hour ferry crowds bound for Kowloon.

Up to the time of going to Press, no arrests had been made.

Enemy Ships To Be Sunk

Shanghai, Oct. 16.
The Chinese Navy, with instructions to sink "all enemy ships," has begun operations off China's south coast in an attempt to destroy a pirate fleet.

The main objective is the pirate flagship, the gunboat "Hai Hsing," which until recently was a regular unit of China's small navy.

There are two versions of how "Hai Hsing," which means "prosperity," came into the hands of the pirates. One is that her crew mutinied and turned pirate. The other is that the pirates captured the ship while she was sailing to Hong Kong.

"Hai Hsing" has done a profitable business operating along the Kwangtung peninsula about 120 miles south of Canton. Unsuspecting junks offer no resistance when the Government gunboats haul up alongside and put "search parties" on board. Then it is too late.

'Why Not?'

London, Oct. 15.
The Prime Minister, Mr. Clement Attlee, told the House of Commons today that he had no intention of publishing the correspondence between President Truman and himself on the situation in Palestine.

This, in reply to a question by Captain Gammans, Conservative, was greeted with Opposition cries of "Why not?" and Captain Gammans asked if the Prime Minister did not realise that the question of Palestine was doing more to poison Anglo-American relations than anything else.

Captain Gammans said that the House was entitled to know what representations had been made by the Prime Minister to the American Government on this subject.

Mr. Attlee said that he was not prepared to accept either of those statements but clearly it was a question for consideration whether the correspondence between President Truman and himself should be published or not. So far as he was aware, there was no precedent—Reuter.

NEVILLE HEATH HANGED

London, Oct. 16.
Neville George Clevely Heath, handsome young ex-R.A.F. pilot, was hanged at grim Pentonville prison today for the sadistic murder of motion picture extra Margery Gardner.

Heath was convicted in one of the most sensational murder trials in Britain's history. Mrs. Gardner's body was found in Heath's London hotel room last June 21 nude with ankles bound. She had been lashed 17 times across her breast and back; there were teeth marks on her body, and she had been severely mutilated with a poker-like instrument.

Heath was also charged with the sadistic slaying of pretty Doreen Marshall, aged 21, at the swank Bournemouth seaside resort less than two weeks later. Miss Marshall's body, also bitten and slashed wantonly, was found in a grove near the shore.

A crowd of approximately 500 men, women and children milled about outside the prison walls waiting for the posting of the Court Notice, announcing that the curly-headed aviator had paid with his life for the crimes which shocked Britain.

Condemned for one murder and known to have committed another, this former Borsalotti boy and thief, who was cashiered three times from the Services, spent many of his last hours playing poker with two of his death guards in his cell.

Heath joined the Royal Air Force in 1938, and was court-martialed after a year's service. He then began a wild career throughout England, posing in some places as the Earl of Dudley, passing worthless cheques and living on women, whom he apparently fascinated with his good looks and charm.

Neither was he known for burglary and sneak pilfering when

NEWSPRINT DIFFICULTIES

The "China Mail" regrets the reduction in the size of the paper this morning. Newprint difficulties—the protracted delay in arrival of a vessel bringing supplies from Canada, and inability to secure newprint of the appropriate size in the local market—are responsible. We expect to be in a position to revert to normal early next week.

Goering Did The Impossible

(By G. K. Hodenfield)

Nuremberg, Oct. 16.
An actor to the last, Goering cheated the gallows in the closing minutes of the last act by swallowing potassium cyanide, and thus created a breath-taking new mystery.

How the one-time Reichsmarschal and Luftwaffe boss managed to conceal the vial of poison for a year and half, or, alternatively, who smuggled it to him in his closely guarded jail cell, were questions which had intelligence officers of four nations hard at work this morning.

Potassium cyanide crystals were carried by all top Nazis at the end of the war. The poison works fast. Hitler died less than a minute after crushing the capsule in his teeth after his capture by the British in 1945.

A capsule was found on Goering after his capture. It was taken away and since then Goering's person and clothes in his cell had been searched at least 100 times.

All through the trial, a guard stood within three feet of Goering in the courtroom and he was never allowed to pass anything to his attorneys, except through the guard. He was guarded by two soldiers every foot of the way to and from the courtroom.

Under A Light

In prison, a guard stood outside his cell peering in 24 hours a day. A light was always on night and day. Goering was not allowed to sleep with his face to the wall. He had to keep his hands outside the covers, where the guard could always see them.

When his wife and daughter visited him, they were separated by a table and screen, with a guard at each end.

The prison commandant, Colonel B.C. Andrus, had boasted time and again that "suicide is impossible" in the Nuremberg jail. But Goering did it. How!—Associated Press.

Enquiry

A three-man board has been appointed to investigate into the suicide of Goering for the Allied Control Council.

Public Relations Officer Col. Richard McConnell said that a "disinterested" officer from the United States Army was named chairman of the board. He said that the identity of all three has not been divulged.

McConnell added that at this time "no arrests have been made and none are at present contemplated." Asked if this included Emma Goering, who visited her husband last week, McConnell simply repeated his statement.—Associated Press.

NAZIS?

Paris, Oct. 15.
The French judiciary police announced today the arrest of several members of a secret organisation, which they think may be the nucleus of a new pro-Nazi movement.

The police theory is that the new organisation was intended to include former members of war-time pro-Nazi groups, like the Militia Waffen, S.S. and Vichy Volunteers.—Reuter.

The Last Act

Seyss-Inquart's glasses were removed as the executioner slipped the noose over his head. He said to a quiet, scholarly way: "I hope that this execution is the last act of the tragedy of the second World War and that a lesson will be learned so that peace and understanding will be realised among the nations. I believe in Germany."

Briton Shoots Robber

(By "Paul Pry")

Awakened just before dawn yesterday by a man coming into his room, Chief Junk Inspector Francis Brett fired three shots at the intruder. The man managed to get away, but not unscathed. He was picked up a little later with a bullet in his stomach.

Brett, who lives at 2 Ventris Road (behind Wongneicheang Road), was awakened around 4.30 a.m. by the man, who inadvertently made a noise in the bedroom. As soon as he saw that Brett was awake, he turned and fled, hotly pursued by Brett who, after warning him, opened fire with his pistol.

He fired one shot as the man ran through the bedroom and missed, which is understandable in the case of a man just roused from a deep sleep. He took another shot at the man as he flung himself down the stairs and missed again.

As the robber momentarily poised himself on a window sill, Brett fired again and the man fell through onto the ground outside. For a moment, Brett thought he had missed once more, but a trail of blood leading up the hillside showed the Junk Inspector that he had got his "eye in" just in time.

Two Chinese police constables, hearing the shots, came on at the double. They followed the blood stains and soon had the man in custody. On him was a watch, a pencil and a gold wrist-watch, all the property of Mr. Brett.

He also had a bullet in his stomach and subsequent examination at the hospital showed that Brett's last shot had to pierce a naval turn—penetrated the body wall and gone through to the stomach.

Interviewed by Inspector Ewins at the hospital, I understand he admitted having carried out two previous robberies in the same area—which had no less than 11 larcenies this month alone. I am also informed that the man had a very bad crime record in Hong Kong before the war.

RASC Boat Seized

Trieste, Oct. 16.
A British officer and three men of the Royal Army Service Corps, whose motorboat broke down off the coast of the Yugoslav zone of Venezia Giulia, south of Trieste, have been taken into custody by the Yugoslav authorities. It was learned today.

They were cruising off the coast near where the Italian liner "Rez" sank during the war by British rocket-ting planes in the Capodistria Bay, when the engine gave out and the boat drifted to shore.

After the Yugoslavs had taken the British into custody, they allowed one man to telephone to Trieste and a British launch was sent to tow away the motorboat.

As the boat was being towed off, shots were fired at it though not at the launch from shore. The British, who have been held by the Yugoslavs since Sunday, are expected to be released today.—Associated Press and Reuter.

NEW COINAGE

In a world of managed currencies, little stir has been caused by the announcement that Britain's silver currency is to go the same way as gold. Just as the "promise to pay" which appears on banknotes has become, more or less, meaningless formula, so the phrase "Would you like it in silver?" will become, if it lingers at all, no more than a courtesy term at the banks. Mr. Dalton's proposal merely carries a process commenced by Mr. Churchill just a stage further. Since 1920 all new silver coins have in fact been merely semi-silver coins of different alloys, alike only in their content of 50 per cent silver. The new coins to be issued in the British Isles will be cupro-nickel, similar in most respects to the Hong Kong ten and twenty cent pieces of pre-war days. Technically, of course, the currency is being debased, with the same object that has served many Governments in history, the creation of an unearned profit for the Treasury. By withdrawing the existing coins, some 475,000,000 worth of silver, borrowed from the United States during the war on Lend-Lease, can be repaid at relatively small cost. The present-day English shilling is intrinsically worth about five pence; the new cupro-nickel coin will be worth but a fraction of a penny. Both, however, must be regarded as token coins and therefore as merely a more durable form of banknote, so that there can be no logical reason why they should not be made less expensive to produce. Here in Hong Kong, it is to be hoped that an effort will soon be made to provide metallic subsidiary coinage and permit the bits of dirty paper that pass for five and ten cent notes to be sent into the refuse destructor, where they really belong. Notes for such low denominations are relatively new to Hong Kong. They were, in fact, only introduced as a war measure when shortages of coins created a pressing problem. There is little or no excuse for their perpetuation. A ten cent piece will buy little but in the form of a coin it is invested with some sort of dignity, and when it comes to keeping a man contented, there is a lot to be said in favour of giving him a little something to jingle in his pocket.

Chu Teh On Gen. Stilwell

San Francisco, Oct. 16. General Chu Teh, Commander-in-Chief of the Chinese Communist armies, has written Mrs. Stilwell that "the Chinese people will remember forever General Stilwell's contribution to the war against Japan and his struggle for a just American policy toward China." Chu's letter was reported in a broadcast from the Communist Headquarters at Yenan. The Yenan "Emancipation Daily" said that General Stilwell's death was a loss to all Chinese democrats and added that he firmly advocated reorganization of the "corrupt Kuomintang Government" and rendering of equal aid to both Kuomintang and Communist parties to strengthen the fight against Japan.—Associated Press.

MARRIAGE BAR LIFTED

London, Oct. 16. Abolition from today of the marriage bar on women in the British Home Civil Service was announced by Mr. Hugh Dalton, Chancellor of the Exchequer, in the House of Commons today. Married women who on account of domestic responsibilities or otherwise are unable to comply with the normal conditions of their employment will not be retained in the service. There will be no sign of reinstatement to women who have in the past been requested to resign on marriage.—Reuter.

H.K. RABBIT WARREN

When a combined force of the United States Air Force operating from bases in southwest China and planes from an American Task Force cruising off Formosa bombed out the Causeway Bay and Tai Koo districts in a four-day operation from April 1 to 4, 1945, everyone of the local populace who was then in the Colony was of unanimous opinion that a raid of such intensity could only presage a land attack on Hong Kong. As it turned out they were wrong, but not exactly a long way off the mark. The general plan of campaign at the time, with its principal emphasis on mopping-up operations in the Philippines and the assault on Okinawa, was yet rather vague and American naval men and pilots who had flown over Hong Kong at the time were of the opinion that this was, at the least, then under consideration. Some have ventured so far as to claim to be in the know over a land attack on the Colony that would have involved Canadian troops and was planned for the end of August. There is in human nature an element of romance and the boys may simply have been going on guess-work. The Japanese, however, definitely planning for an assault both from land and sea and evidence is now to hand that the Nips were planning to put up a big show before the final retirement to the monument on the hill adjoining Mount Cameron for a mass hani-kiri ceremony, if we are to believe the evidence of the Kowloon Kempeitai chief who stated as much under cross-examination during the trial of George Wong.

Vast System

With all this now in the past, it is possible to take a look at what the Japanese were planning to do and then to indulge in a long shiver before making a decision for the future. The true extent of Japanese plans is perhaps a War Office secret. What we can make of them is built on that surmise that is possible from the available evidence. There is daily more of it as the vast system of tunnels, honey-combing the whole area extending from King's Park across Waterloo Road to Kadoorie Avenue and from thence up to Gramscien Road, covering vast areas of Kowloon Tong in the direction of Ia Loi Tong is being slowly and painstakingly uncovered by the Army Ordnance and P.W.D. teams. The survey is yet in its half-way stage after having taken more than a year, being one of the first jobs started after the re-occupation of Hong Kong. Estimates so far place the network over the whole Colony at over 20 miles. From the few miles of these rabbit warrens so far probed into several thousand tons of ammunition, mostly high explosive, have been unearthed and destroyed. This alone would not point to go underground, but a major clue to what the Japanese were thinking about is pointed at by the quantities of solidified alcohol that have been found in these tunnels, an indication that there was intention to cook underground.

H.K.'s Escape

Should the war have dragged through August and the assault on Malaya have been successfully carried out with the Japanese still receding, Hong Kong would have been a shambles second to no other place in the Far East barring Hiroshima, Nagasaki and other Japanese towns. Whatever can be said against the atomic bomb, it probably saved the lives of thousands of those who would have died in Hong Kong. Main system of defence would probably have been the network of tunnels under Kadoorie Avenue and the Diocesan Boys' School. It is a matter of opinion how much explosive it would have taken to bring the Nips who would have been lodged there from under cover. The earth in that section is not particularly firm and landslides after a few block-busters may have worked the trick. Again they may have not. In the process, however, most of Kowloon east of Nathan Road would have been levelled and the rest of the Colony would have come in for a hair-raising hammering. Other indications that this system of tunnels would have been the main defence system lies in the fact that most prominent Japanese army officers lived in Kadoorie Avenue or in that portion of Kowloon Tong adjacent to it.

Peak System

On the island there is another system of tunnels on the Peak that has been subjected so far to

"Better put it back! You wanna get us hung up for kidnappin'?"

WHY GERMANY LOST THE WAR

Could we have avoided defeat? What opportunities did we miss? Goring's reply to these questions was published yesterday. Today, Field-Marshal Keitel gives his version.

Nuernberg, Wednesday. "The Allies missed many chances exactly as we did. The only difference was that they caught up with their mistakes sooner or later, while ours finally led to defeat and capitulation," said Keitel, ex-Chief of the Supreme Command of the Wehrmacht.

"Every war has an abundance of lost opportunities. It is true, however, that this last one was specially rich in them," said Keitel.

Keitel declared that the last war was so gigantic in its proportions that none of the antagonists could foresee or control all the eventualities, possibilities and occasions.

One of our biggest missed opportunities was El Alamein, he said. "I would say that at that climax of the war we were nearer to victory than at any time before or after. Very little was needed then to conquer Alexandria and push forward to Suez and Palestine, but we were just not strong enough at that particular point due to dispersion of our forces in the war against Russia."

"Instead of attacking Russia we should have strangled the British Empire by closing the Mediterranean."

"The first step in this operation would have been the conquest of Gibraltar."

Franco Ready

"That was another great opportunity we missed. Everything, indeed, was prepared for such an attack. Among other things we had organised manoeuvres in the French Jura Mountains to try out LFH 18/105 cannons as well as our SFH 18/150 and 210 mortars against solid rocks."

Keitel said General Franco was willing to put Spanish territory at the disposition of the Nazis. All he asked was that they should save his face by respecting the Greek trick on the peninsula.

"That meant he wanted us to provide a British landing somewhere on the coast of Spain or Portugal so that he would appeal to Hitler for help and open up the Pyrenees to us," said Keitel.

"The conquest of Gibraltar under those conditions would have been feasible without any doubt. The Wehrmacht, the Luftwaffe and the Navy could have launched a concerted assault."

"Several hours' battering the Rock with our artillery from Algeiras, a permanent aerial bombardment and with frontal attack by our land troops from only an initial survey. That would probably have been the Nip C-in-C's headquarters until the ceremonial bowing and scraping by the monument and the gory business."

However, the emphasis seems to have been on the Kadoorie Avenue-Ho Mun Tin system. Excavations there are continuous and more dangerous. Those who have worked on them are still working on them usually go the whole hog on Brother Backus on Saturday nights. Some of them wonder why (no one has done anything about placing the road up to the Diocesan Boys' School out of bounds as the possibility of one of the Chinese communists boys picking up a bomb and throwing it may have a way in life or limb is not remote.

the north would have quickly finished the fortress."

"However, Hitler didn't try it. He knew by heart every episode in the Napoleonic Wars and he was aware of the fact that Spanish Wars are usually long and costly."

Hitler's Fears

"At the last minute he cancelled the project because he feared complications, and did not want to be engaged at the two extremities of Europe at the time."

Field-Marshal Keitel said the last opportunity the Germans missed was the "Eindringen" offensive against Antwerp in December, 1944. "If we had won that," he said, "we might have regained enough time to put our jet fighters and super-rockets into full operation."

"The offensive failed because of the numerous mistakes of the adjutants of Field-Marshal Rundstedt, notably ex-Sergeant Sepp Dietrich, who had seven divisions under his orders, but lacked the indispensable strategic competence to command them."

"However, as I have said, the other side missed plenty of opportunities, too. It is my firm conviction that the Allies could have won the war right after it started."

"If I had been in command in France at that time the Germans would never have got into France in the first place."

"On September 3 and on the following days it was a great surprise to us and an incomprehensible mystery to observe the Allies, instead of opening a full-scale attack, only stretching out a few timid feelers into our West Wall."

"I am sure they would have been strong enough at that time to have trespassed our fortified lines. The target of such an offensive would have been, of course, the Saar, the Ruhr, and the passage of the Rhine."

A Gamble

"If those objectives were rapidly reached Hitler would have been obliged to have withdrawn troops from the east and the entire aspect of the war in Poland would have changed."

"Victory or defeat are the results of a thousand imponderable circumstances. Every war is a gamble from the first day to the last. We have gambled and we have lost, but I know today that even had we won, it would not have brought us happiness."

"Every game where the stakes are millions of fellow human beings can never be worth the candle."

DISCRIMINATION NOT ALLOWED

Frankfurt, Oct. 16. The United States Military Government in Bavaria has served notice on the German Bar Association that it will not permit discrimination against German lawyers for activities as defence counsel in war crimes trials, an Army Public Relations official in Munich said.

The Cologne Bar Association is opposing urgent disbarment action against the German lawyers who defended Goering and other Nazis.—Associated Press.

SOLDIER'S RIGHT OF APPEAL

Committee To Be Set Up By War Office To Consider Unfavourable Earlier Reports

London, Oct. 15. The appointment of a committee to consider whether under the Military Code there should be the right of appeal to a court of appeal was announced in the House of Commons today by the War Minister, Mr. Frederick Bellenger. Answering a number of questions arising from the recent quashing of convictions by court martial against British paratroopers in Malaya, Mr. Bellenger said that the exact composition and terms of reference of the committee would need consideration. An announcement would be made as soon as possible.

Mr. Bellenger said: "The suggestion that under the Military Code there should be the right of appeal to a court of appeal in the ordinary sense of that term is not new. Two important committees, whose reports were laid before this House, have already considered the question. "The first was the committee presided over by the late Justice Darling which sat in 1919 and deliberated in the light of experience of the Great War. The second was the committee presided over by Mr. Roland Oliver, King's Counsel (now Justice Oliver), which reported in 1938. Both these committees reported against the setting up of service appeal courts and gave weighty reasons for their views, which are fully set out in their reports.

"I will not attempt to recapitulate those reasons here but would point out that the Darling committee considered that the existing system of automatic review of court martial proceedings by the Judge Advocate General and a further review on petition furnishes the soldier convicted by court martial with fuller safeguards against error at his trial than are available to a civilian convicted in a civil court.

Later On
"However, as the former Secretary of State for War (Mr. Jack Lawson) indicated on December 4 last, it was always contemplated that an investigation should be undertaken in the light of recent war experience and he suggested that it would be desirable to appoint a committee for this purpose a little later on when the Judge Advocate General and other staffs intimately concerned were less heavily pressed with current business.

"I agree with that view and after consulting the Secretary for Air (Mr. Philip Noel Baker) I now propose that a committee of similar standing to the Darling and Oliver committees should be set up forthwith for this purpose. The exact composition and terms of reference of the committee will need consideration and I will make an announcement as soon as I can. Questions relating to the administration of justice under naval law would be a matter for the First Lord of the Admiralty (Mr. George Hall).

Mr. Hector Hughes, Labour: In setting up that committee, will he in conjunction with the appropriate authorities take steps to inquire into the advisability of amending the Army Act and other acts relative to the armed forces, so as to make them more consonant with the needs and conditions of the present time.

Last Session Of Paris Conference

Paris, Oct. 15. The Palace of Luxembourg was crowded to capacity for the last session of the Paris Conference this afternoon. All the Big Four Foreign Ministers—Mr. Bevin, M. Bidault, Mr. Byrnes and Mr. Molotov—were present as the session opened.

The chairman was Dr. Quo Tai-chi (China).
Announcing the conclusion of the conference, Dr. Quo said: "This conference, after two and a half months, has finished its work. History alone will judge what has been achieved. But of one thing I am certain—the world in which we live today is a single and indivisible world. It is time that justice, decency, reason and humanity be firmly re-established in the world. This can only be achieved by the constant efforts of all nations and their statesmen to co-operate with each other in confidence, good faith and unity.

"That is why I say any attempt artificially to divide the world into blocs or groups is not only calculated to delay decisions for world peace, but will surely lead to disaster."
People's Peace
Mr. James Byrnes answered critics of the work of the conference and pleaded for a "people's peace."

"Whenever I think of the way in which the representation of smaller nations have worked at this conference, I realize how distressed the peoples of these countries would have been had they been denied the opportunity to express their views," he said. "The conference had disclosed that these nations that participated in fighting the war are not only vitally interested in the peace, but can make a valuable contribution to the drafting of the treaties."

"It is now the duty of the Council of Foreign Ministers to try to reconcile our differences. Such reconciliation necessarily means disappointment for some and probably for all, but we must exercise self-restraint to maintain our common unity and bring peace to a war-weary world."

"Before we adjourn I want to assure you that as a member of the Council of Foreign Ministers I will sympathetically examine every recommendation which has been adopted by this conference."

Mr. Byrnes moved two resolutions, one thanking the General Secretariat and interpreters for their work and the other thanking M. Georges Bidault and the French Government for their hospitality. The resolutions were loudly applauded.

Democratic Peace

Mr. Molotov, the next speaker, supported Mr. Byrnes's resolutions. "Now when we are labouring to establish peace," he continued, "the Soviet Union considers it to be its duty to continue the fight to achieve the objectives which we strove to achieve in war. The Soviet Union will continue to do all in the power with full vigour and consistency that it considers essential for the establishment of a democratic peace."

Mr. Bevin, adding his support to Mr. Byrnes's resolutions, said: "I will not enter into the difficulties of the conference, except to say this one last word. It has been said the seeds of every great war has been sown in the settlement of the previous war. But it is equally true that the seeds of permanent peace can be sown at the end of a great war. Every decision I have to take, and I hope every decision that others have to take, will be in recognition that if we take a wrong decision, or push our own point of view too far, it is not this generation that has to pay for it, it is generations yet unborn."—Reuter.

Arrests were made and some people were injured here tonight after the police had clashed with student demonstrators, who urged workers to strike tomorrow in protest against the departure of Ismail Sidky Pasha, the Egyptian Prime Minister, for talks in London. About three hundred students marched through the streets, shouting slogans against the Premier and distributing leaflets, urging workers to strike.

Several lorries, full of police, dashed to the scene and after a brief clash, in which the police used whips and bamboo canes, the demonstrators were dispersed.—Reuter.

question is one which the committee had better consider.

"Habeas Corpus"

Mr. Barnett Janner, Labour: Will he answer that portion of the question put by myself in relation to the right of a soldier to appeal against his conviction and penalty to a court constituted of at least one civilian judge. Will he consider giving the right to apply to a court to be freed from detention.

Mr. Bellenger: I think that will be one of the matters to come under the review of the committee.—Reuter.

London, Oct. 15.

That the hanging of Goering and others condemned at Nuernberg would be filmed was described as inaccurate by Mr. Attlee, in the House of Commons today.

He said that the Allied Control Council, on which the British Government was represented, decided last week that no film or photograph should be taken of the execution.

Photographs of the bodies would be taken after death by an official photographer, accompanied by representatives of each of the four powers for record purposes. These would be the only photographs allowed.

There had been no decision of the Allied Council on the question of the publication of these photographs.

"For my part, I should be strongly opposed to their publication," Mr. Attlee declared. He was replying to Mr. Anthony Eden, Conservative, who had asked if the British Government was taking every action in its power to prevent a public exhibition of any such film or photograph.—Reuter.

Sequel To Fantastic Voyage

New York, Oct. 15. Captain Frank Henley Haas pleaded guilty in federal court today to a three-count indictment charging he attempted to smuggle three alien women into the United States. He was given a suspended sentence and placed on probation for one year.

The prosecution said the captain shipped out of San Francisco aboard the "Ada Rahar" last year for a two-week voyage but the orders were changed and the vessel touched Far Eastern ports in a fabulous 18-month cruise during which three native women joined the ship at Iran and lived in the crew's quarters enroute to New York. Defense counsel said Haas had a fine war record and participated in the Leyte landings where he was wounded. Associated Press.

Batavia, Oct. 15. Holland's only aircraft carrier, the Karel Doorman, strengthened the Dutch position in Batavia with her arrival here. The Doorman was formerly the British aircraft carrier, HMS European and Near Eastern. Associated Press.

Cable And Wireless Bill Passed

London, Oct. 15. The House of Lords today gave a third reading and passed the bill, putting Cable and Wireless under public ownership. The bill now awaits formal Royal assent.

Lord Altricham, Conservative, asked for a statement on the nature of the organisation and clarification of the domestic and Commonwealth sides of the matter. He expressed strong approval to transfer to the Post Office and suggested setting up a corporation.

Viscount Addison, leader of the House, said that he could not make any definite statement today.

Lord Teviot, Liberal, asked if the efficiency of organisation was not likely to be detrimentally interfered with and whether the Government was sure that foreign Governments would give the same confidence to this business when it was run by the Government. He hardly thought so.

Lord Reith, who has just been appointed permanent chairman of the Commonwealth Communications Council, said that he would never have been a party to the scheme he submitted if it had in any way lessened efficiency.

Viscount Cranborne, leader of the opposition, said that the impression he had got when at the Dominions Office was that the existing system could not continue and a new setup was inevitable.—Reuter.

Indonesia Hopes Of Peace At Last

Batavia, Oct. 15. The Dutch Commission-General, sent out from Holland to negotiate with the Indonesian leaders, hopes to reach a "basic" agreement with them on the future status of Indonesia by the end of next month, it was officially announced here today.

The commander of the Indonesian "Army of the Republic" General Soedirman, last night broadcast the news of the truce to the Indonesian people and issued orders that everything be done to prevent further fighting.

The truce clauses, providing for the "stabilisation of the radio of Allied and Indonesian forces" meant that the total number of Dutch forces in the Netherlands East Indies after November 30 would not exceed the present combined Dutch and British forces, provided that the truce was not violated, the statement said.

"A general demobilisation by both sides," as specified in the truce, will obviously depend on the progress of political negotiations. Some two hundred leaders and members of irregular Indonesian fighting organisations, along the East coast of Sumatra have been arrested for not obeying the orders of the official Indonesian leaders, a high Republican spokesman said today.

A British plane today took Mohammed Broom, Indonesian Minister of the Interior, and Air-Commodore Soedardjono, Indonesian member of the joint truce commission, to Jogjakarta, where they are to report to Dr. Soekarno, President of the Republic, on the truce agreement.

They are expected to invite General Soedirman, Commander-in-Chief of the Indonesian National Army, and Vice-Admiral Nasir of the Indonesian Navy, to come to Batavia and take part in the commission's activities.—Reuter.

SIAM TO RETURN PROVINCES

Bangkok, Oct. 15. The Siamese Parliament today endorsed the Government's decision to return the four disputed provinces to France by 91 votes to 29.

The provinces are Battambang, Banteay Meanchey, Kampong Cham and Kampong Thom.

One of the French proposals was that Siam should declare null and void the Tokyo Treaty of 1941 but the Treaty will not cover this. Instead, the territories will be transferred as a basis for further negotiation.

It is understood that the French are amenable to this. A Government spokesman at this morning's Parliament session stressed that the return of the territories was inevitable and was based on the advice of the big powers.—Reuter.

Pleasure Cruise Ends

Berwick-On-Tweed, Oct. 15. The small motor ketch "Viking," bound for Spain and the Mediterranean on a pleasure cruise, ran aground here yesterday and suffered severe damage. Her occupants, two Danes, Captain Yens Herman Hendrickson, the owner, and his companion, Fred Olan Hamalainen, both of Copenhagen, sailed from Christiansund last Tuesday with a large supply of food aboard.

A day out from port, the engine broke down and adverse winds blew the boat to Berwick, where she stranded on the sandbanks at the river entrance. The local lifeboat went to her assistance.

Captain Hendrickson said he had taken the food supply along because it was not possible to take much money out of Denmark.—Associated Press.

NEW CONGRESS PRESIDENT

New Delhi, Oct. 15. Acharya J. B. Kripalani, former General-Secretary, becomes the new President of the Indian National Congress. It was stated today after Manilala Abul Kalam Azzad, former President of Congress, has announced his decision not to stand for election as President.—Reuter.

Really A "Principal Tenant Evil"

The landlord evil really seems to be a principal tenant evil commented Mr. George She at the Central Magistracy yesterday when Wong Shun Wah, a woman, residing at No. 45 Johnston Road, 3rd floor, was charged in a case of considerable importance to sub-tenants.

The case was the first of its kind to be brought before the Courts and Mr. She, describing the offence as a serious one, said he was very glad that Inspector Moran had brought it up.

Defendant was charged with failing to keep affixed on a conspicuous part of the premises, a declaration of rent payable by her to the landlord and with failing to serve Yung Joe, one of her sub-tenants, with a notice certifying the part of the rent paid by the said Yung Joe to her.

Inspector Moran said that as a result of a complaint by Yung Joe of the Royal Naval Dockyard, the work at No. 45 Johnston Road, had been under an order of the Secretary for Chinese Affairs, accompanied by Sub-Inspector Wang, who was not present but a thorough inspection revealed that there was no notice affixed in accordance with Article 2 of the Proclamation. Accused had spent $1,010 in placing the premises in a habitable condition. There were four cubicles and accused herself occupied the third one. The other three were rented for $24, $23 and $38 respectively. The complaint arose in consequence of accused wishing to increase the rent paid by Yung Joe by $3.

"Keep The Law"

Convicted accused, who pleaded guilty but claimed ignorance of the law, Mr. She said, "I earnestly warn you to keep the law and keep the law down by law. You are only entitled to add 20 per cent to the rent paid to the landlord." Inspector Moran said he had made enquiries of the landlord, accused paid $30 a month for the premises, which was a reasonable rent. Accused was fined $500.

Soviet Evidence Admitted

Tokyo, Oct. 15. Justice Sir William Webb, President of the War Crimes Tribunal for the Far East, said today: "If aggression is violation of international law, one nation cannot pardon an offensive by agreement."

He was admitting evidence by which the Soviet prosecutor attempted to show that Mr. Mamoru Shigemitsu, at one time Tokyo's envoy to Britain and later Tojo's Foreign Minister, was threatening force against the Soviet Union in 1938.

The Soviet prosecutor said that in negotiations between Mr. Maxim Litvinov, then Foreign Minister of the Soviet Union, and Shigemitsu, the Japanese diplomat asserted that Japan had rights and obligations in Manchuria to use force to make Soviet troops evacuate Manchurian territory.

The defence objected that the negotiations were concerned with a minor border incident, which was settled amicably.—Reuter.

CRASH OFF CORNWALL

London, Oct. 15. Lieutenant G. Hoes, of the Royal Netherlands Navy, jumped clear of his single seater aircraft which sank within a few seconds after suddenly nose diving into the sea about four miles off the Cornwall coast today.

Lieutenant Hoes was spotted within 35 minutes by an amphibious rescue plane, but in landing on the sea the rescue plane damaged its under-carriage and was unable to take off again. The pilot had to run the plane on the sea surface for several miles to land the exhausted Dutch seaman on the beach.

Watchers on the beach helped to carry Lieutenant Hoes to a nearby house, from which an ambulance took him to hospital. He was suffering from shock and exhaustion, but was not injured.—Reuter.

Secret Protocol Story Denied

(By Reuters Diplomatic Correspondent)

London, Oct. 15

The existence of a secret protocol to the Potsdam Agreement covering the situation in China, denied last night by the State Department in Washington, was today categorically repudiated by the spokesman of the Foreign Office. The story is reliably considered to be the echo of a secret agreement on China which was concluded by the Big Three powers at the Yalta Conference and subsequently published. The exceptional move at Yalta was taken to meet the circumstances caused by the Soviet decision to declare war on Japan. There was no comparable reason for a secret agreement at the time of Potsdam.

Well-informed Chinese quarters in London today admitted the story was most improbable, but emphasised that if true, the agreement would meet with strong disapproval from the Chinese Government.

Diplomatic observers here pointed out that details of the alleged pact are essentially unconvincing. The pact is, for instance, said to have provided for the severance of Outer Mongolia from China. In the Yalta agreement, on the other hand, the Big Three powers stated that the status in Outer Mongolia at that time under nominal Chinese suzerainty, was to remain unchanged.

The change to independence was freely negotiated by the Chinese Government in the Sino-Soviet pact of August, 1945, which provided that a plebiscite should be held in Outer Mongolia. Subsequently, the Chinese Government recognised the independence of this province as the Mongolian People's Republic.

"The Potsdam secret agreement" is also said to have provided for the partition of Korea. In fact, the future of Korea was discussed by the Big Three powers in Moscow in December, 1945, and the results of these negotiations were published at the time. The Big Three then agreed to set up a provisional Government for Korea, drawn from both the Soviet and United States occupation zones, which should govern under Big Four trusteeship for a period of five years. Though the Soviet Union and the United States have so far failed to agree on the composition of the provisional Government, there is clearly no intention on either side that Korea should be partitioned.

Belled By Facts

Similarly, the suggestion that the Chinese Government should be forced to accept a quota of Communists, alleged to have been part of the secret agreement, is belied by facts. Though General George Marshall, of the United States, has consistently tried to mediate between the Chinese Government and the Communist forces, no trace, much less coalition Government, has proved possible, and there is certainly no indication, as has been suggested, that the United States and Britain agreed to allow the Soviet Union freedom to act on her own responsibility. If a coalition were not obtained. On the contrary, all indications are that the Soviet Union and the United States are in complete disagreement regarding the situation in China.

And, in any case, observers in London consider it nothing short of absurd to suppose that the Soviet Government would require approval from the West before deciding to act on "its own responsibility."—Reuter.

STRAITS SHIP ORDER

Singapore, Oct. 16.
Singapore's coastal and inter-island trade will be seriously affected by the shipping order issued here which comes into force on October 23.

This reinforced the pre-war Merchant Shipping Ordinance, requiring ships of 75 tons and under to carry a qualified skipper and a qualified engineer.

Local traders, who estimate that about 600 ships will be affected by the order, say that there are insufficient qualified men available and they demand the highest salaries.

The ordinance also requires ships above 75 tons to be manned by a British skipper, mate and engineer, whom traders say are difficult to obtain and expensive.

Traders do not object to the order but seek postponement of its enforcement for some months.—Reuter.

Britain And Bretton Woods

London, Oct. 16.

Mr. Hugh Dalton, Chancellor of the Exchequer, was asked in the House of Commons today about the maximum amount the United Kingdom could be called on to lend under the Bretton Woods scheme, whether in the form of contribution to the capital of the International Monetary Fund and of the International Bank for reconstruction and development, or as a result of member countries using quotas for the purchase of sterling.

He answered that Britain's contribution was $325,000,000 to each but the Bank can only call for $205,000,000 unless the money is needed for guarantees. Other countries cannot get more sterling from the Fund than what the United Kingdom has put there by means of her subscriptions.

"We have no need at present to make any further arrangements for overseas borrowing," said Mr. Dalton, in a written reply. He had been asked if it was still the United Kingdom Government's policy that Britain should not avail itself of the facilities of the International Monetary Fund and International Bank.—Reuter.

China Reparation Hopes

Shanghai, Oct. 14.

China hopes to obtain about 4,000,000 tons of machinery and equipment from Japan in the form of reparations. It is learned. This machinery, which will go a long way towards re-establishing China's crippled heavy industries, will be stripped from Japan's arms, aircraft, chemical and other factories in accordance with the Allied plan for the demilitarisation of the country.

According to Mr. Wu Fan-lung, member of the Chinese delegation to the Allied Control Council in Japan, no final allotment of Japanese industrial equipment has yet been made. However, he thinks that China, in view of the tremendous war damage she suffered, should receive at least 30 per cent of the estimated total of 12,000,000 tons available for distribution.—Reuter.

Curse Of
The Peking
Cups

Vancouver, Oct. 16. The mysterious disappearance of the Shanghai French millionaire banker, Henri Bar, is in the news for perhaps the last time—unless the supposed curse of the Peking cups appears again.

Henri Bar's son, Claude, has come to Vancouver to claim a $500,000 treasure that his father shipped from Shanghai. The treasure includes the cups which are said to have been stolen from the Peking Palace in the early 1900s during the fall of the Chinese Dynasty. Some have attributed a curse to them.

Henri Bar disappeared from the British freighter "Samwater" en route from Shanghai to Vancouver last Spring. At the time, the ship's officers said they believed he had fallen overboard in heavy seas, but it seems that they mulled darkly about a jinx supposedly caused by the agate cups in Bar's luggage.

They pointed to a series of mishaps which had befallen the ship on its trip from the Orient. There was bad weather; injury to a longshoreman; sudden insanity of a crew member.

Reports at the time of the elder Bar's disappearance said that he carried three jade necklaces around his neck. His son said, however, there had been no such articles in his father's collection.

Claude Bar laughed at the theory of the curse on the cups. He said he and his pretty wife of three months are not worried. They plan to either return to France or settle in America with the treasure.—Associated Press.

Wong Lap, who was originally accused, was discharged owing to the lack of evidence.

Inspector White is conducting the prosecution.

Wong Wing Kit, Manager of the Tradewinds Company Limited said that on Sept. 30, at about 11.40 a.m. he was seated in his private office at Room 833 Wing Hing Building, 2nd floor, with his assistant manager, Wong Sun Po. First and third accused entered the office, preceded by Pong Sik Yiu, a friend of witness, and the office boy, Chia Fong. First accused had a gun pointed at their backs and warned witness not to make a noise. He then ordered third accused to search all present, except the office boy. Third accused took from witness a Mido watch and $12 in cash. He was then told by first accused to open the safe. About $3,300 were taken therefrom.

As he left the office, first accused told witness that he could recognize him and warned him not to raise the alarm or make any report to the Police. As soon as first and third accused left, witness raised the alarm. First accused threatened him by pointing the pistol at him. A chase continued along Queen's Road, down Pedder Street and then into Des Voeux Road Central. Seven or eight policemen joined in. First accused ran up the lane at the back of Jardine's building, but before doing so, turned and pointed his pistol at witness. Police officers continued the chase and witness next saw accused under arrest in Pedder Street.

Wong Sun Po gave corroborative evidence, after which hearing was adjourned till Oct. 23 at 2.50 p.m.

Goering
Cheats
Gallows

A handful of witnesses in the execution chamber were still waiting for Jodi and Seyas-Inguart to be pronounced dead when the body of Goering was brought in.

Two Army chaplains stood half turned toward the three freshly painted gallows, from two of which hung the two bodies at the end of the tightly stretched ropes.

Big Bare Feet

Beyond at the far end of the room was a black canvas curtain behind which rested the remains of eight other political and military chieftains of the most terrible despotism the world has witnessed since medieval times.

The chaplains were reading from prayer books. The guards set the stretcher bearing Goering's body down between the first and second gallows. Goering's big bare feet stuck out from under the bottom end of an ordinary khaki coloured United States Army blanket. One blue silk pajamaed arm hung over the side.

The Colonel in charge ordered the blanket removed. As the blanket came off it revealed to the witnesses and Allied correspondents the face of a freebooting political racketeer still contorted with pain of the last agonising moments.

They covered him up quickly and this Nazi war lord who, like a character out of the days of the Borgias, had wallowed in blood and beauty, passed beyond the canvas curtain into the black pages of history that mark the end of the Hitler era.

Secret Destination

Nuremberg, Oct. 16. Two sealed vans sped out of Nuremberg prison under an armed escort, carrying the bodies of the suicide Hermann Goering and his ten hanged associates.

Where the bodies were taken will remain a secret, Capt. Samuel Binder of the Security Police detail, declared emphatically. They went to nameless graves, somewhere. It is a good guess that part of the journey was by train. The trucks were protected by two Jeeps filled with military police brandishing sub-machine-guns. Also in the parade was a large black automobile carrying a Brigadier-General.

RESULT

Newmarket, Oct. 16. The Cesarewitch, which was run here today, was won by Monsieur L'Amiral. Ford Transport was second and Geoffrey's Lady was third. Twenty-seven horses ran. The betting was 33 to 1 on Monsieur L'Amiral, 100 to 1 on Ford Transport and 100 to 1 on Geoffrey's Lady. The race was won by three quarters of a length. One and a half lengths separated the second and third.—Router.

Soccer Refs.
Meet

A talk on football was given by Mr. J. MacKellie, Vice President of the Hong Kong Football Association, at the fortnightly meeting of the Hong Kong Referees Association in the Gloucester Hotel yesterday.

Mr. MacKellie related some amusing incidents which occurred in his career both as a footballer and an official of the Association and stressed that in his experience there were two things which any footballer should avoid.

The first was "playing the man" instead of the ball. He had known numerous instances where a player had been hurt playing the man instead of the ball.

The other was the very common habit of players "Not playing to the whistle." He knew of many matches lost through this failing and stressed that there were times when the referee, no matter how impartial he might be, missed incidents.

SOCCER

The final game of a series between 42 Cdo. (Lt.) and H.M.S. "Armada" took place at Chatham Road on Monday. The Commandos were defeated. 1. Play was fairly fast and extreme determination on both sides was obvious. The first goal came from Armada very early in the game through Streeter. The Commando goal was a shot from the right wing. Sgt. Murray, who came tearing in from the wing, Armada again pressed and obtained the lead through Kirk. Play then was fairly even until the Commando left-back handed in the Penalty Area.

Thompson took the spot kick and made no mistake. The game was clean and sporting, typical of the previous four matches between the two teams.

42 Cdo. (Lt.):—Hazel, Davis, Mason, McLeane, Pitman, Cogswell, Murray, Gummer, Fowkes, Hing, McManis.

H.M.S. "Armada":—Green, Birch, Gummard, Sergeant, Robinson, Tuck, Reed, Thompson, Kirk, Thompson, Streeter.

GROUNDS
RE-ALLOCATED

The Recreation Grounds committee met yesterday in the Council Chamber under the Chairmanship of the Hon. Mr. V. Ken. Most of the grounds held by clubs in pre-war time were re-allocated. The tennis courts, formerly allotted to the Nippon Club, were given to the Education Department.

The Polo ground at Boundary Street was allotted to the Army, who (by mutual arrangements) will allot certain dates for the Royal Air Force.

taking speed, heading for Firth, where there are two airfields. Both fields were dark and the few attendants did not seem to know anything unusual was going on. The convoy turned toward Blanda where there is another airfield. Military police there, up road blocks throughout the area, and it was impossible to trail the vans further. The trip lasted about two hours apparently. The escort left the prison at 0430 GMT. An officer in the party was back in Nuremberg at 0630 GMT.—Associated Press.

Lake Success, Oct. 16. France and Mexico were reported to have joined Russia and Poland in opposing admitting Spain to the International Court of Justice on a non-member basis.

An authoritative source made the disclosure that the Security Council prepared to decide the question raised by Poland on the Court's month-old request for guidance on conditions, under which non-members may bring a case before the high judicial organ in the Hague.—Associated Press.

BRITISH SPORT AND THE A.A.A.

(By Harold M. Abrahams)

Track and field athletics—running, jumping, hurdling and throwing—have been practised in Britain for hundreds of years. National Championships have been held for exactly 80 years. Since the year 1880 amateur athletics have been organised by a central body, the Amateur Athletic Association. The rules under which athletic sports have been practised in Britain for three generations have been adopted in America and on the continent of Europe, and were accepted by the International Amateur Athletic Federation when that body was founded in 1912.

All amateur athletic meetings in Britain are governed by the rules of the A.A.A. Indeed any boy or man who participates in events under rules not recognised by the Association is liable to be prevented ever from competing under A.A.A. rules. He would thus be debarred from national, district, or even club championships, and possibly for ever from any international competition. If his offence were not too heinous, however, he might be reinstated and become eligible once again for all these events.

At Headquarters there are the various committees—finance, championship, publications etc. There are three district associations for the North, Midlands and South, as well as county associations. Last and most important of all there are the athletic clubs. These clubs elect members to the various committees of the A.A.A. itself, the three districts and the counties, so that the whole basis of government is democratic.

The Amateur Athletic Association is concerned only with male athletes. Women have their own Association—the Women's Amateur Athletic Association—organised on very similar lines. There are many hundreds of clubs in Britain, for track and field athletics are extremely popular. In the winter months there is cross-country running, and in the summer season (from May till September) events are held on the track. Many of the large business houses and factories have their own sports clubs, but in the main clubs are local affairs. All the Universities have their own clubs, as do all the schools though schoolboys are encouraged to take part only in Junior events.

London Tracks. The subscription to a club is very small. In most cases the athlete pays his own travelling expenses and has to buy his shorts, vest and running shoes. If he belongs to his club, county or national colours he will be presented with a vest, shorts and coat bearing these colours. Also his travelling and other expenses will be paid. In London there are under running tracks in many of the parks where athletes can train for a low payment. Many of the big business houses have sports grounds for their workers, but very few have cinder paths—mostly there are grass tracks. There are not so many tracks in other parts of the country as in the London area, but the situation is improving and the new town planning will make adequate provision for recreation. Many municipal authorities already provide some form of recreation ground.

There are plenty of competitions in Britain in peace-time. In normal times every school has its sports meeting. There are many inter-school and inter-county matches for schoolboys, and schoolboy championships covering the whole country. County, district and national championships for juniors (16-19 years) and seniors are also held.

The national championships, held annually at the White City stadium, have always been open to amateur athletes from all parts of the world. Each July (except in years when the two world wars) municipal authorities already provide some form of recreation ground.

There are two or sometimes three international matches and sends representatives to the European championships and the Olympic Games. In normal times, too, many of Britain's athletes pay visits to the Continent, parts of the Empire, and on rarer occasions to the United States.

British Records. A quarter of a century ago, coaching was almost non-existent. Now Britain has a large team of amateur coaches who train boys in the proper methods and the improvement in performance has been very marked.

Some of Britain's national records are very high as the following figures will show: 100 yards (101.4 metres) 9.7 sec. 220 yards (201 metres) 21.2 sec. 440 yards (402 metres) 47.6 sec. 880 yards (804
